Event: Talk Show on Lakhpati Didi

Organized by: Women Development Cell, Government Engineering College, Patan

Date: 14th October 2024

Time: 10:30 AM to 12:30 PM

Duration: 2 Hours

Number of Participants: 52 Girl Students

Occasion: Viksit Bharat Week Celebration

As a part of the Viksit Bharat Week celebrations, the Women Development Cell of GEC Patan successfully organized a Talk Show on the "Lakhpati Didi" initiative, focusing on women empowerment through government-supported schemes. The special guest for the event was Ms. Dimpleben, popularly known as Drone Didi, who has become an inspiring figure by utilizing government-provided resources to transform her career and community.

During the two-hour session, Dimpleben shared her remarkable journey — from her early struggles to becoming a successful "Drone Didi" after receiving a drone under a Government of Gujarat scheme. She explained how the Lakhpati Didi initiative aims to empower women across rural and semi-urban areas by providing them with entrepreneurial skills, technological support, and financial independence, ultimately helping them achieve an annual income of over one lakh rupees.

She emphasized the importance of taking advantage of various government schemes designed specifically for women's development, and encouraged the students to step forward confidently in emerging fields like agriculture technology, entrepreneurship, and drone operations. Through her inspiring words and personal experiences, she motivated the attending students to dream big, break societal barriers, and contribute meaningfully to the vision of a self-reliant, developed India (Viksit Bharat).

The event saw enthusiastic participation from 52 girl students, who were deeply enriched by the valuable information shared about women's welfare schemes and the real-life success story of Dimpleben. The talk show not only broadened their understanding of available opportunities but also ignited a strong sense of ambition and self-belief among the young attendees.
